

THE MODEST LITTLE ART SHOW THAT WASN'T

with
Jim McAllister

Discover the color and excitement of Salem's golden age of art. Through the vehicle of a tiny Hamilton Hall art show, offered as part of the 1939 "Chestnut Street Day" celebration, learn how the now-famous artists Frank Weston Benson, Philip Little, and Ross Turner laid the foundation for a Salem art colony in the 1880s. Meet many other painters of the era with Salem connections and learn of their relationships to each other, to Salem institutions and events, and to the broader world of American art.
